学 習 目 標
授 業 概 要	This course is an introduction to the Development Studies. This course introduces the basic development theories, institutional architecture, and practice of international development. There is special focus on issues relating to poverty, education, health and governance, but the course also introduces development theories in the fields of sustainability, human rights and gender equality. The class poses the central “questions”: What does poverty mean? Why are some countries poorer than others? How have different development actors been addressing the challenges of development? Who are left behind from development fruits and why? This course will unpack these questions by providing an overview of existing knowledge and best practices in the field. By the end of the course, the students are expected to be able to; <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • understand basic perspectives, concepts, discussions, and theories about international development; • obtain basic knowledge of development problems and opportunities in the areas of human development, economic development and gender equality; • account for the Sustainable Development Goals and challenges.
授 業 時 間 学 習 以 外 の 学 習 (準 備 学 習 含 む)	Pre-learning Prior to each class, students should prepare by independently reviewing the relevant topics through the assigned chapters in the reference materials. Approximately, one hour is required for pre-learning. Post learning After each class, students are expected to submit comments demonstrating their understanding of class lectures. The next class begins with a recap based on the students' comments. Approximately, one hour is required for post-learning. Our university limits one credit unit to 45 hours of study time. Please conduct pre- and post-learning according to the needs of each class.
